

MACDONALD VICTOR WITH CABINET

CLAIM AL CAPONE MAY CAPITULATE

WILL ENTER PRISON PENDING APPEAL OF CASE TO SAVE TIME

Denied Bail, Gunman
Would Rather Be
In Leavenworth

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Al Capone, America's chief gangster, may capitulate to his adversary, the United States government, and willingly go to Leavenworth Penitentiary, his lawyers indicated today.

But this capitulation would be made only to avoid "wasting time" while his attorneys strive in the higher courts to win a reversal of the jury verdict finding the hoodlum boss guilty of defrauding the government out of his income tax.

The possibility that Capone may shortly ask to be taken to Leavenworth where he is under sentence to serve a ten-year term arose as a consequence of a ruling by the circuit court of appeals, denying the gangster his liberty on bail.

The ruling, handed down yesterday, means that Capone must remain in the county jail here until his appeal from his conviction is ultimately disposed of, a matter of nearly two years if customary procedure is followed.

Thus, the appellate court's action in granting Capone's petition for a stay of sentence, while at the same time denying bail, is of no value to the convicted gangster's cause. Unless a court higher than the appellate orders Capone released on bail, he may voluntarily request to be sent to Leavenworth without further delay in order to receive credit on his sentence, should his appeal be denied.

Michael Ahern, the gangster's attorney, intimated he may go to Washington and ask Supreme Court Justice Van Devanter for an order directing the appellate court to vacate the conviction which postpones Capone's trip to Leavenworth.

"We don't want Capone to waste his time sitting in the county jail when he might be getting credit on his sentence," Ahern declared.

In the county prison the convicted gang leader is not credited with having served time on his sentence. Should Justice Van Devanter of the supreme court refuse to either order Capone's release on bail or the vacation of the appellate court writ, Capone's actual imprisonment would be nearly two years more than the ten-year term imposed upon him by Judge James H. Wilkerson.

If customary procedure prevails, Capone's appeal may be argued before the appellate court in about two months and a decision rendered probably next February. If the appellate court rejects the appeal, another year will probably be consumed in filing and arguing the appeal before the United States Supreme Court.

While his attorneys battled for his freedom, Capone spent several hours in his tiny jail cell, amusing himself with a game of solitaire. He has refused all visitors, except his lawyers.

Britton, who was rushed first to a hospital in Georgetown, Ky., suffered a crushed leg and internal injuries. He was a member of a party of sixteen relatives and friends traveling from New Carlisle to Greenville, Tenn.

PREDICTS DEMOCRATS TO DRAFT NEWTON BAKER FOR PRESIDENT

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Embarrassed by laudatory estimates of his friend's statesmanship, a prediction that former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker will be "drafted" to accept the Democratic presidential nomination was made here today by State Senator James A. Reynolds (D) of Cleveland.

An acquaintance of Baker for more than forty years, Senator Reynolds called the former secretary of war "one of the biggest men in the country" and forecast that the Democratic nomination will go to him by a landslide when his candidacy is once pushed.

Baker's declaration that he will not be a candidate will not dissuade his friends, and, in the end, they will force him to head the Democratic ticket, Reynolds told International News Service.

"The whole state will rush to his support once the movement gets under way. One state, of course, will not be enough, but that will not stop him. From all over the nation will come vigorous backing," he said.

"No one is powerful enough a political figure to prevent his nomination—no one.

"Opposition in Ohio could not hope to stop him, of course. That is unthinkable.

"I predict that Baker's nomination will be made after the Democratic convention has split over a selection.

"His name will be turned to by a crowd of delegates who hope to prevail upon him to settle the dispute.

"They will force him—draft him—and that will be the beginning of a great campaign."

Reynolds' statement was regarded as important here due to his long standing as one of the leaders of the Democratic party in Cleveland.

His declaration that Baker will stand above other possible Democratic candidates in Ohio was seen as a view which probably will arouse much dispute in the state Democratic organization during the next few months.

Baker's stand for the League of Nations was said by Reynolds to be one of his strong points.

"For many years, Baker, when asked to speak, insisted that he discuss only the League of Nations, for which he has uncompromisingly stood since the plan was worked out by President Wilson. He is still as sincerely an advocate of the league as ever," Senator Reynolds stated.

CHANGE IN BRITISH GOVERNMENT CAUSE FOR APPREHENSION

Higher Tariff May Result; Would Hit
France Worst

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The landslide proportions of yesterday's British elections deeply impressed Washington today. The news of it was received with mixed feelings. While there was a feeling of satisfaction over Britain's pronounced swing to the right, as opposed to the left represented by the radical elements of the Labor party, there was at the same time some apprehension over the policies, particularly tariff, which the new government probably will proceed to put into effect without delay.

Britain is one of America's best customers, and any British protectionist policy is bound to affect American trade to a considerable extent. That England and her colonies will now proceed to erect tariff barriers to protect home industries, and to stimulate trade within the empire no one here has any doubt. The full effect of such a policy cannot at this time be gauged, officials said. It all depends upon the degree of protection which the new government considers necessary in the present turbulent economic conditions, and the manner of its application as applied to specified articles.

It is anticipated, however, that the new British policy will embrace, first, a general tariff against the world, and second, the institution of a preferential tariff within the empire itself, whereby Canada, Australia, New Zealand and other dominions will be able to trade with the mother country on a preferred basis.

Any new British tariff policy, however, will likely affect France more than the United States, for it is not believed here that the British will impose high protective rates on "necessities," which comprise the bulk of American exports to Britain. It is considered, rather, that the British policy will aim more at taxing so-called "luxuries," which she now imports from France in considerable quantities.

As regards board questions of international policy, the change in British governments is expected to have comparatively little effect. Probably, it was said here today, there will be a "stiffening" of British policy in some respects, but on the whole little change is expected.

GOVERNOR WHITE IS INJURED WHEN AUTO SKIDS INTO DITCH

Executive Suffers Fracture Of Collar Bone In Crash

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Governor George White early today was reported "resting comfortably" at the executive mansion after suffering a fractured right collar bone last night when his automobile skidded into a ditch on the Dixie Highway north of Findlay.

The chief executive was taken to White Cross Hospital here today for a complete X-ray examination to discover the exact extent of his injuries, received as his car skidded on a rain-slicked highway and plunged into a deep ditch. The governor's chauffeur, Ralph Wooster, at the wheel of the car, was not injured. There were no other passengers.

Governor White returned to Columbus by train last night after receiving treatment at Findlay Hospital. He was pulled through the window of the wrecked automobile and taken to Findlay by W. C. Wright, a salesman, of Detroit, who had been following the executive's automobile.

While according to a statement by Carl W. Smith, his secretary, was returning to Columbus from Toledo when the crash occurred. He had conferred Tuesday with officials of several banks which recently closed there and was conducting an investigation of the city's banking situation.

Nations Join Plan To Protect Manchuria Interests

TOKYO, Oct. 28.—China and Russia have reached an agreement for mutual protection of each other's interests in Manchuria, according to Japanese news agency reports received here today from Mukden.

The terms of the agreement call for Russia to preserve Manchurian territorial integrity and for China to protect Russia's interests in Manchuria, the Japanese dispatches said.

The basis for this cooperation was said to have been reached in conversations between L. M. Karakhan, assistant commissary of foreign affairs at Moscow, and Mo Tse-Chi, Chinese envoy to the Soviet.

In the event of a Russo-Japanese war, the reported agreement provides that Chinese security should be sought in cooperation with Russia. The Chinese regard restoration of Chang Hsueh-Liang to power in Manchuria as a necessary preliminary, according to the Japanese news agency.

Reports received here today from Beijing state that there is to be a meeting between Chiang Kai-shek, president of China and leader of the National army, and Chang Hsueh-Liang. They are expected to open negotiations with Japan for restoration in the three eastern provinces of the status quo that existed before the Japanese occupation of Mukden.

Tokyo is today sending to the League of Nations a list of the Sino-Japanese treaties, including the treaty of 1915, in view of Dr. Alfred Sze's letter to Aristide Briand expressing Chinese willingness to arbitrate.

Japan does not intend, according to officials here, to submit these treaties to the world court for interpretation since Japan has no assurance that China would carry out decisions rendered at The Hague.

JESSIE GETS HER HUSBAND FREED

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Jessie Reed, former follies actress, succeeded in getting her fourth husband out of jail where he was held for failing into arrears in alimony payments to his first wife, it was revealed today.

The disclosure came with an announcement by the ex-follies girl's attorney that a tentative agreement had been reached between Miss Reed's present husband, Leonard M. Reno, and his first wife, Mrs. Muriel Reno who divorced him six years ago. Miss Reed has been instrumental in raising funds which made the agreement possible, it was said.

Reno was placed in "alimony row" of the county jail on September 21. His arrears amounted to $7,390. Jessie Reed induced the attorney for the first Mrs. Reno to permit Reno's release on bail upon his promise to raise the required money.

MORGAN'S KIN SUES FOR DIVORCE

Glenn A. Howland

"A Little Love Will Mend a Broken Heart" is the cheering theme of a popular song which Mrs. Muriel M. Howland, of Detroit, a cousin of J. Pierpont Morgan, wrote, but, in real life, her broken heart leads her to the divorce court. She has filed a crossbill to the suit brought by her husband.

Mrs. Muriel Howland

Glenn A. Howland, scion of a prominent Detroit family, charging that he failed to support her and their five children and forced her to associate with lewd persons who frequented speakeasies, Mrs. Howland alleges that her husband left her stranded, in Pittsburgh, with one dollar, last October, and that she has not seen him since.

ATTORNEYS FOR TIGRESS FIGHT EXTRADITION AS WOMAN WEEPS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—A legal battle was in prospect today to prevent, or at least delay, the return of Winnie Ruth Judd to Phoenix, Arizona, where she killed Agnes Lerol and Hedwig Samuelson and stuffed their bodies in two trunks and a suitcase before shipping them to Los Angeles.

While Sheriff J. R. McFadden of Phoenix, was speeding to this city today, armed with extradition papers, Mrs. Judd's attorneys made ready to challenge the "legal sufficiency" of the papers signed by Governor James Rolph, Jr., in San Francisco.

Charles Cradick, associated in

Mrs. Judd's defense, announced he will demand a hearing in a California court to test the validity of the extradition papers. Sheriff McFadden was expected to arrive with the documents today.

In the hospital ward of the county jail Mrs. Judd met the news of the issuance of extradition papers with an outbreak of grief. While jail attendants tried to calm her down, the confessed woman-slayer wept and shouted hysterically.

"Oh, isn't there something my lawyers can do?" she sobbed. "Hasn't it been proved that I'm sick with active tuberculosis?"

Arizona authorities hope to have the woman on the way back to Phoenix within a day or two, but the resistance of her lawyers may defer the return trip.

The extradition papers accuse Mrs. Judd specifically of the murder of Mrs. Lerol, regarded by Arizona officials as a definite case of premeditated killing.

Mrs. Judd's attorneys gave further evidence of their intention to enter arguments of insanity and self-defense in the forthcoming trial. They announced that at least four alienists will be sent to the county jail to examine the woman. It was indicated that the lawyers will plead self-defense as justification of the murders and will then probably advance arguments of mental and nervous deficiency to explain Mrs. Judd's dismemberment of Miss Samuelson's body before she packed it into a trunk and a suitcase.

Authorities today were inclined to discredit the "confessions" of Fred Williams, 26-year-old chemist of El Paso, Tex., that he was Mrs. Judd's accomplice in the crime. They pointed out numerous inconsistencies in Williams' story of having gone to the Lerol-Samuelson cottage in Phoenix on the night of October 16 in Mrs. Judd's company. However, Williams was being held as a material witness.

Williams said he was the one who shot Mrs. Lerol because the latter attacked him during a scuffle which arose between the three women.

Informed by International News Service at his home in Chert, Surrey, of his re-election, members of Lloyd George's household said it was "most welcome news." Lloyd George was forced to refrain from participation in the campaign owing to a serious illness.

PREMIER WINS AS LABORITES ARE DEFEATED

Conservatives Sweep
Election; Lloyd
George Elected

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Forging to victory on the crest of an anti-Socialist landslide, Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald has won his dramatic battle for re-election to parliament from his old constituency of Seaham Harbor, Durham, for years a rock-ribbed labor stronghold.

It was a personal triumph for the premier probably unequalled in his long and colorful career as politician and statesman. Standing as national coalition candidate, he risked his political prestige by challenging the local Labor machine which he himself organized and which turned against him when he retired as Labor premier to head the non-partisan cabinet in September.

Crushed under an avalanche of Conservative votes, the British Labor party stood defeated and disorganized as returns continued to roll up an overwhelming parliamentary majority for the national government.

The Conservatives, supported by national Laborites and national Liberals, were swept into power assured of sufficient seats in the House of Commons to enact a protective tariff or any other measures they may deem necessary for the nation's economic rehabilitation.

At 2 p. m. today, national coalition candidates had won a total of 386 seats in the House of Commons and opposition candidates had won only thirty.

Because of such a preponderance of Conservative strength the possibility arose that Stanley Baldwin, the Conservative leader, would eventually become the national government's prime minister. Baldwin, who was returned to the commons unopposed, declined to discuss these reports.

Among leading Conservatives who were re-elected were Sir Austen Chamberlain, first lord of the admiralty, Neville Chamberlain, minister of health, Lady Astor, American-born and Briton's first woman member of parliament; Sir Herbert Samuel, leader of the National Liberals; Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary of state for India; Sir Stafford Cripps, who was solicitor general in the labor cabinet and ran as a supporter of MacDonald; Leopold S. Amery, one of the leading Conservative tariff advocates; Leslie Hore-Belisha, National Liberal leader; Sir Philip Sassoon, under-secretary of state for air and a friend of the Prince of Wales; and the Countess of Iveagh, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, president of the board of trade.

Edward Scrymgeour, only prohibitionist in the last parliament, was defeated as well as Sir Oswald Mosley, who left the Labor party to organize a "new party" of his own.

David Lloyd George, titular leader of the Liberal party and staunch opponent of the national coalition government, was re-elected to the House of Commons in his constituency at Carnarvon, Wales, according to complete returns.

Lloyd George polled 17,101 votes against 11,714 for Captain F. Page-Groulay, his Conservative opponent. The ex-premier's majority was considerably less than in the last elections.

Informed by International News Service at his home in Chert, Surrey, of his re-election, members of Lloyd George's household said it was "most welcome news." Lloyd George was forced to refrain from participation in the campaign owing to a serious illness.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you.—Deuteronomy, iv. 2.

NO NEED TO WORRY

If we read that 1,500 troops had been called out in Mexico or China to enforce the law against 1,000 embittered citizens, would we not say: "At! At! again. Those turbulent countries?" The spectacle this time is nearer home. The opposing forces are facing each other on the southeastern sector of the Bovine War that has been going on in Iowa since March. The farmers are resisting the compulsory testing of their cattle for tuberculosis. State troops are out to overawe the "rebels" and see that the law is carried out. This is a peaceful and law-abiding country. We know it is because we keep telling ourselves and the world that it is. Consequently we do not get excited over such incidents when they occur in our own midst.

Other nations are more skeptical of our turn-the-other-cheek temper. They read our history with meticulous and embarrassing thoroughness, which we, as a rule, do not. A few years ago, Arnold Toynbee, a not unfriendly critic, wrote that, after clearing half a continent of its aborigines and cleaning up on Mexico and Spain, we need not be surprised if Europe doubted a little of our pacificism. The generality of Americans is likely to be less surprised by Europe's doubt than by learning that from the War of Independence to the World War the United States Army was engaged in 105 wars and punitive expeditions, almost one a year! Add to that Maj. W. A. Gano's list of 328 instances of some part of the army being called out in the nine years from 1886 to 1895 to suppress or prevent disorder somewhere within our borders. Consider that that concerned the regular army alone. The National Guard frequently is on duty. In one state it suppresses riot; in Oklahoma it curbs oil production; in Louisiana it guards "Governor" Huey P. Long's occupancy of a State House.

An historian once wrote that during the long reign of the peace-loving Victoria scarcely a sun rose that did not look down upon the upturned face of some young Englishman killed in battle. We can't equal that record; but hardly a sun has risen in our history that did not look down upon some Yankee lad sleeping on his arms. We understand that such things do not denote bellicosity. Others may be pardoned if they don't.

SHE WROTE RAMONA

One hundred years ago, or to be exact, on October 18, 1831, Helen Maria Fiske was born in Amherst, Mass. Does that mean anything to you, dear reader? Then know that Helen Maria Fiske later became known to the world as Helen Hunt Jackson, the author of "Ramona," one of the most successful stories "with a purpose" ever put into print. Although Mrs. Jackson was a poet of some distinction in her day, and wrote prose sketches which were highly thought of, it is upon this one work that her present fame rests. And that fame promises to be singularly enduring.

For, up to this time, "Ramona," first published in 1884, a year before the death of its creator, has gone into at least 134 printings, has been filmed three times, and, according to its publishers, is still being regularly sought for.

There is a reason. Helen Hunt Jackson knew how to write and she was full of her subjects. The wrongs suffered by the California Indians at the hands of the authorities burdened her heart. A scorching volume, which she wrote on the subject, stirred the country and procured for her a Government appointment to act as special commissioner to examine and report on the Mission Indians. Mrs. Jackson and her associates did their work, but the report was pigeonholed in Washington, as many similar efforts are.

However, "H. H." determined that this should not be the end, and she set about the writing of her masterpiece in which the wrongs she had found were exposed. It has continued alive until now by reason of its literary excellence. The picture it presents of California before the gold discovery, and because it contains a love story with a universal appeal to lovers of romance. Helen Hunt Jackson undertook a labor of love and championship, and created an outstanding, distinctive American novel.

JOHN WINS

A Fascist boys' organization in Rome offered a prize for the best answer to the question: "What is Italy?" Up spoke John Esposito, an American lad: "The country where Mussolini was born." John gets the motorcycle—and justly. What other answer would have appealed as strongly to the youthful followers of Italy's de facto ruler?

Other persons might answer the question differently—and not get motorcycles. Although Signor Mussolini has done great things for his country, a vast amount of water and some blood had rolled down the Tiber before he came upon the scene. Virgil had written his immortal poems. Caesar's legions had tramped down the earth. Catiline had conspired, Cicero and Cato had declaimed. At one time the eagles of Imperial Rome spread their wings over virtually all of the known Western world. With shrunken provinces, art and literature kept Italy upon the map of culture. Signor Mussolini is building upon foundations laid through the ages.

NEW YORK — What few New Yorkers know:

That if you want to commit suicide, you should pick some place distant from the Battery, where Peter "Buck" McNeil is on guard. He has more life saving medals than any man alive, including a diamond one for plucking 256 persons from death in the waters off lower Manhattan.

That until a few years ago one of the largest department stores in town used to start each day's business with a hymn service. And they send runaway girls back home from pious New York!

That Captain Kidd lived in the crookedest street in town—Pearl street.

That, on an average, four new businesses start up here every 42 minutes. There are still optimists.

That one of the famous cosmetic concerns features a "beauty bar" where high heels hook over the rail as another round of lipstick is ordered.

That the reason this season in the theatre is so sleep-provoking is the excessive caution of producers, who were afraid to put on anything of original merit, depending upon rebashes of old hits.

That Averell Harris, villain of the Gary Cooper film, "His Woman," studied art here at the Art Students' league, while John Barrymore daubed at the next easel. Harris quit painting for an excellent reason. He found out he was color blind.

That a professional "beautician" in lower Fifth avenue will "analyze your individuality" (if any) and prescribe the clothes requirements of your social or professional position and will make your wardrobe allow for neckline, coloring and silhouette—all for $12.

There is only one piece of statuary in a New York public park by a woman sculptor—the equestrian statue of Joan of Arc, Ninety-third street and Riverside drive, by Anna Hyatt.

That some of the sleekest looking yachts moored against the Battery Barge office are captured run runners waiting to be auctioned.

That, according to Ernest, maitre d'hotel at a swank restaurant, this is the perfect luncheon: Clam juice cocktail, eggs Encoire, chicken hash with Mornay sauce cooked in cubes of toasted bread, puree of broccoli, Belvue sauce and spiced fruit with French pastry. "Please, mister, gimme a dime for a cuppa coffee!"

That Frank Case, manager of the literary Algonquin hotel, told Tailulah Bankhead she'd never be a real wow until she got rid of her outlandish name. It's her real tag, too.

That a baby zep zips around the skies over Manhattan so ceaselessly day and night, that the curious wonder when its crew gets a chance to eat and sleep.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK AT LAST!

ANTI-HOOVER SENTIMENT RISES IN PROGRESSIVES THROUGH REPORT

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—The vigor of the Progressives' fight for another Republican presidential candidate than Herbert Hoover in 1932 will depend, says Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, "upon their success in uniting on a constructive program at the coming session of congress."

Talk of formidable G. O. P. opposition to Mr. Hoover's renomination was stimulated recently by publication of the report of what is known as the Richberg committee, appointed at the Washington conference of progressives last spring to outline a policy on the public utilities issue. This report is so completely contradictory to the recognized Hoover creed that it is difficult to see how anyone who indorses it can continue to support the present White House tenant.

Of course it remains to be demonstrated, however, as Senator Brookhart suggests, how generally it will be indorsed by members of the progressive bloc on Capitol Hill.

Perhaps it is significant of a beginning of the process of crystallization in the progressive leaders' plans that the Iowa senator, ordinarily the most blindly pugnacious of their number, appears to have settled down to a serious consideration of the practical politics of the campaign ahead.

Hitherto, "Hoover can be beaten," is as far as he has gone into details concerning next year's Republican nomination prospects.

He evidently is weighing actual methods and chances now.

"In states where delegates are chosen in convention," he admits, "the regular party machinery doubtless will function as usual. In states where the selections are by the primary system progressive-ism can win."

Candidates? "Well," said the senator, apparently at a venture, "Hiram Johnson, for example, can carry California."

Hm! President Hoover's home state.

"Yes," quoth the senator aggressively, "as if sensing a note of skepticism, 'and several other far western states, too.'"

"And young Bob LaFollette can count on Wisconsin, plus a few more."

"Iowa," gloomily, of his own commonwealth, "is a convention state; not so easy."

It goes without saying that the Hawkeye solon would support Senators George W. Norris of Nebraska or William E. Borah of Idaho, were it possible to tempt the one or the other candidatorially; he frequently has emphasized the enthusiasm with which he would campaign for either of them.

He mentioned neither, but both were understood as on his list, if available.

It undoubtedly was by mere oversight that he failed to refer also to Gov. Gifford Pinchot, for the Pennsylvanian is a progressive hope of the first magnitude—and not regarded as a very balky one, either. Indeed, it happens that he was in conference with Senator Brookhart only a short time before I called on the latter, but it was supposed to have been a secret, why may have been the reason why the senator refrained from catalogue-ing him.

It would be an error to assume that many politicians of any party really believe that President Hoover can be kept out of a renomination.

There is a goodly number who wish he could be; a great majority of the progressives intend to put up a genuine fight against him, and two or three of the ultra-reconcilables, like Senator Brookhart, may have some hope of success, but their group certainly is a small one.

Still, as the Iowa says, there is the coming winter's session to be reckoned with.

The Richberg public utilities report is to be followed by more reports, from other committees left over from last March's progressive conference. None promises to be any less uncompromisingly anti-Hooverian than the Richberg offering.

The Richberg plan, as already has been revealed, contemplates putting government into the utility business, all the way up and down the line, from a federally-owned railroad system, inclusive of state-owned power plants, to municipally owned city services of all sorts.

The Richberg concept, to be sure, is to put government into this field only on a competitive basis with private enterprise, as a regulative influence upon corporate, dividend-paying ownership and operation.

"But why not frankly recognize," asks Senator Brookhart, with his customary candor, "what the whole thing is leading up to—governmentalization of the entire public utilities industry?"

Let the progressives unite on so far-reaching a reorganization and prove themselves strong enough to push it forward during the coming congressional session, and it is not exaggerating to say that party alignments will hardly know themselves when next convention time rolls around.

This, it seems, is something the proportions of the shake-up that Senator Brookhart is looking forward to as among the 1931-2 winter's possibilities.

But, as previously remarked, it is as yet problematic whether or not the progressives will unite along a sufficiently advanced front to attain the goal the Iowa envisions with his political binoculars.

Let the progressives unite on so far-reaching a reorganization and prove themselves strong enough to push it forward during the coming congressional session, and it is not exaggerating to say that party alignments will hardly know themselves when next convention time rolls around.

This, it seems, is something the proportions of the shake-up that Senator Brookhart is looking forward to as among the 1931-2 winter's possibilities.

But, as previously remarked, it is as yet problematic whether or not the progressives will unite along a sufficiently advanced front to attain the goal the Iowa envisions with his political binoculars.

Let the progressives unite on so far-reaching a reorganization and prove themselves strong enough to push it forward during the coming congressional session, and it is not exaggerating to say that party alignments will hardly know themselves when next convention time rolls around.

Cites Record Of Heart Action

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

Among the most valuable of the new methods of functional testing of the organs of the body is the recording of heart action.

The heart is composed of a special kind of muscle and divided into four chambers. All of these working synchronously produce the pulse beat. The old-time physician, by feeling this pulse beat, could learn a good deal about the action of the heart as a whole. He could tell whether the beat was strong or weak, whether the heart was rapid and laboring under excitement or undue stimulus, whether it was beating regularly and rhythmically or not. But for any purposes of close analysis of the action of the four different chambers or of the different parts of the heart muscle he was at sea.

To enlarge his knowledge the first instruments introduced about 20 years ago attempted to make a tracing with a pen on a moving sheet of paper of the pulse at the wrist, simultaneously with the apex beat of the heart and the pulsation of the veins in the neck. The latter were designed to show the contraction of the upper chambers of the heart—the auricles—while the apex and wrist tracing showed the action of the lower chambers—the ventricles.

When these tracings were completed they were somewhat enlarged views of the pulsations at the various points. They could be analyzed minutely and studied, much as a detective or artist might examine a signature under the microscope to determine whether it is a forgery or not. They furnished a great deal of valuable information, but they were clumsy and not easily handled. The machines themselves were so temperamental and spilled so much ink that most of us who possessed them found that the only way to operate them was to get into a bathtub full of ink with the patient and the instrument and take the tracing; you did not get ink over so many different places that way. But some patients objected to this, so the methods fell into disuse.

Then an instrument called the electrocardiograph was perfected and it has been a pure joy. Its principle depends on the fact that a muscle in contracting causes a change of electrical potential to occur along its course. The heart is a muscle, and if all other muscles in the body are kept still, and electrodes fastened on the opposite sides of the body, the heart's contraction wave is recorded and can be photographed on a moving strip of film.

The use of this instrument reveals more about the mechanism of the heart than any other instrument the medical profession has ever had. It shows how the wave progresses or is held up in any part of the course of the heart muscle. If there is a pulse irregularity it shows where that irregularity originates and what is its cause.

In arterial disease of the heart it locates the exact place where disease exists in a way that to an older generation would have seemed uncanny. Many years ago, when the instrument was first being used, a prominent physician said that the time would come when the blood vessel which was diseased in the heart could be located as exactly and minutely as we can now locate what blood vessel in the brain is obstructed. This prophecy has recently been fulfilled by the work of Barnes at the Mayo clinic.

As to irregularities of the heart, a word of comfort from these studies can be given. Irregularities of the heart are very common, especially after 40 years of age. The commonest of all—the so-called missed beat or dropped beat—is perfectly harmless and indicates no disease of the heart muscle whatever.

Girl Craves Popularity

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It would be interesting to know the per cent of young people of high school and early college age who have inferiority complexes.

Most of our own folk vividly remember our own feelings of unpopularity when we were in school, and the agonies we suffered from them. Remembering, we try hard to give our children so much confidence in their own worth that they may avoid these feelings, but in spite of everything the modern parent can do, with the aid of innumerable parent advisors now available, young people get the same unhappy slant on life that we did when we were kids.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a young girl, not quite 16 and a junior in high school. You know, Virginia, that all girls in high school want to be popular, and I am one of them.

"When I see other girls having good times with boys at school dances, you don't know how I envy them. It seems that if you don't get you're not popular.

"In our school the various societies and fraternities hold 'dime dances' after school. I love to dance and can do so pretty well. I do not go because I am a 'wall-flower.' No boys ask me to dance. Maybe it is because they do not know I can dance. How can I let them know?

"I do not know why I am not popular, because I am good looking. I am tall and slim. I have a wealth of hair, which has a natural wave. I have wonderful clothes, but there is one fault that I have and that is an inferiority complex. I never know what to say to a boy and whenever I have to walk before any boys I feel so conspicuous. Please tell me how to overcome this.

"There is nothing I want so much to have as popularity. Please tell me how I can become popular. I am popular with girls. Tell me, Virginia Lee, if it is possible to be popular without being tough and without going on petting parties.

"Yes, Blondie, it is perfectly possible for a girl to be a social success and not tough, as you call it

If Xenia loses its National Guard Armory, as now appears certain unless the enlistment campaign receives the support it merits, it may mean a deterrent to independent basketball in this city.

It is probable a great many people have lost sight of the fact that the armory basketball floor is almost the only court suitable for independent basketball purposes. The Lang Chevrolet Co. "Falcons" played most of their games at the armory last season. It is true a number of the games were also staged at Central High's gymnasium, but the armory floor is more spacious.

Xenians have never realized it, but the armory is admirably suited for many forms of indoor athletics. It could be utilized for gym classes, volleyball, tennis and other forms of recreation besides basketball. An ideal community athletic center, although the possibilities of the armory have never been fully brought home to the public.

Tom Swope, veteran sports editor of the Cincinnati Post, informs this department that he and Joe Mauer, football coach of Xavier College, accompanied by their wives, plan to come to Xenia Friday night to witness the night football game between Wilberforce University and Alabama State.

The Cincinnati scribe has long nursed a desire to watch a Wilberforce football team in action, having heard so much about the ability of the school's team.

Head of the game not being changed from Saturday afternoon to Friday night, Swope would have been unable to come, although Coach Meyer had planned to view it because Xavier is not scheduled to play this Saturday.

Transfer of the contest to Friday night may possibly keep the Xavier mentor from being present, but it will permit Swope to attend and satisfy his yearning to see just how good the Bulldogs really are.

The Rest Haven club ball was entertained recently by the management with a winner roast at the Rest Haven Park. String music was provided and Ralph Silverdecker gave an instrumental solo. The Murrell brothers were absent, but the following players were there: Ralph Brill, Dan Cyphers, Wesley Thompson, Earl Cyphers, Lester Cyphers, Homer Brill, Guy McMichael, Kenneth Stewart, George Bartley, George Houston, Howard Brown, Jason Ankeney, Clay Masters, Lon Emerson, Ralph and Charles Silverdecker and R. Swigart, manager.

Fuel plenty for the early winter season of the "hot stove league" is being furnished by the Chicago Cubs' announcement that it intends to rebuild its ball team.

While the Cubs are not especially rich in trading material, they have several players of the first magnitude who have won their welcome with the management.

The Bruins' established stars, Hack Wilson and Pat Malone, are slated for the trading block.

Baseball gossips have it that the Cubs were willing to part with players and cash for Chuck Klein of the Phillies. The latest report is of a deal (denied by both clubs) whereby Wilson and Malone, and a young pitcher, are to be exchanged for Red Lucas and Estel Crabtree of the Cincinnati Reds. Heaven forbid.

However, Pat Malone, recently nicknamed "Slugg," probably will command a high price in the trade marts. The bulky right-hander had an ordinary season in 1931 but fans believe friction with Rogers Hornsby had much to do with this record. Pat earned twenty-two victories in 1930.

In passing, if R. A. H. thinks this department is going to throw a jealous fit because his column rated a floral tribute and our's didn't, he is mistaken. The legend on Hy's card said the flower was for both columns, and we would have mentioned it sooner, only we couldn't spell chrysanthemum. Had he sent a rose the matter would have been simplified. Anyway, a passing glance at the chrys—was all we got because the recipient lost no time in putting it in his coat lapel and walking off with it. The old manie. He fished for his flower and we didn't for our petition. And they kill time!

XENIAN RECEIVES COLLEGE DEGREE

The degree of bachelor of science was conferred "in absentia" Wednesday upon Miss Elizabeth Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Spahr by the social service department of Simmons College, Boston.

Miss Alexander spent two months doing field work in Boston in preparation for her degree. She is now employed in social work at the Montgomery County Children's Home. Degrees in the department are being conferred "in absentia" by the college, because Harvard Church, where it had been expected to conduct the exercises, was recently burned.

BUCCANEERS YEARN FOR LOOP VICTORY; HAVE TIE COMPLEX

Visitors To Bring Strong
Eleven To Xenia

Grim determination marks the practice sessions of Xenia Central High's football squad this week as the Buccaneers prepare to indulge in their fourth nocturnal game of the season—a Miami Valley League contest with Greenville at Cox Field Thursday night.

Xenia has now reached the halfway point in its 1931 football voyage, with a record of one victory, one tie and three defeats, and as it engages in putting its ship in order, there is a well-founded belief the roughest part of the cruise is over.

The Buccaneers are striving to erase the memory of one glorious and two inglorious beatings. Wilmington's expected triumph, since it was by a smaller margin than anticipated, was not so hard to take, but the lopsided spankings inflicted by Cincinnati Withrow and Miamiburg were difficult to swallow without clogging the windpipe.

Nevertheless, all will be forgiven if Xenia makes any kind of a showing against Greenville this week. The only basis for comparing the relative ability of Xenia and Greenville would indicate the latter school is two touchdowns better. The Bucs tied Piqua, 6 to 6, and Greenville won from Piqua, 13 to 0.

Xenia and Greenville began football relations in 1922, and in recent years the two schools have developed a remarkable faculty for playing tie games. Of the seven games played, each school has won twice and the other three were draws. The Bucs won in 1922 by a score of 12 to 0 and in 1926 by 29 to 0. Greenville won the 1924 contest, 27 to 0, and the 1929 game, 6 to 0. No games were played in 1923 and 1925. In 1927 the teams of that year battled to a scoreless tie. The result in 1928 was 6 to 6 and in 1930 it was again 6 to 6.

The tie Xenia earned against Greenville last season ended a chain of fourteen consecutive defeats for Xenia teams over a two-year period.

This season, possessing a team that averages well in size and ability, Greenville defeated Dayton Fairview, 12 to 0, swamped Versailles, 39 to 12, was barely beaten by Troy, 6 to 0, then beat Piqua, 13 to 0. Eddie Stiles is the coach. Everhart at quarterback for the Big Green eleven, is a brother of "Red" Everhart, star of Greenville teams for the past three seasons. He has inherited most of his brother's football talent, being fast and game and difficult to stop.

The purchase price, as agreed upon when the contract was made last January 3, was $13,250, the plaintiffs claimed, saying they transferred a deed to the farm May 19 but that the defendants, after paying $12,250, refused to pay the balance of $1,000.

All testimony in the case was taken at the jury trial Tuesday, but since the suit resolved itself into a question of law rather than issues of fact, it was removed from the jurisdiction of the jury by Judge R. L. Gowdy, who directed a verdict favorable to the plaintiffs.

The ruling was based, it was said on the fact Bahn had paid a part of the purchase money to T. C. Long, former Xenia real estate broker, payment being made to the real estate agent without authority of Glass.

The afternoon session will be given over to marketing problems. Paul Young, marketing specialist of Ohio State University will speak on "What Dairy Cooperatives are Doing." C. W. Lawrence, manager of the Miami Valley Milk Producers Association will explain the work of the association and Fred Flynn, treasurer of the Miami Valley Association and in charge of the milk marketing work will speak on the association's new marketing plan.

A question box will be used and producers are urged to bring their questions and problems.

The Spring conference of the Hillsboro District of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held at Trinity M. E. Church, Xenia, next April.

VETERAN HOME GRID
PLAYER HAS ANKLE
BROKEN ON TUESDAY

The O. S. and S. O. Home football team, training for its scheduled game with Springfield High School reserves on the Home gridiron Friday afternoon, lost permanently Tuesday afternoon the services of George Wolfe, veteran fullback, who suffered a broken ankle in a hard scrimmage session.

The injured griddier was brought to the office of Dr. H. C. Messinger shortly afterward and an X-ray of the ankle revealed the fracture.

Wolfe was a star lineman last year, playing a center position. This season he had been used alternately at center and fullback and was one of the mainstays of the team. He was particularly adept at kicking points after touchdowns and his educated toe brought the cadets several victories by one-point margins last fall.

Losses in the speculative favorites ranged from 1 to 6 points. New York Central and Pennsylvania broke through to new low price levels while Union Pacific, a large holder of other rail shares, dropped back 6 points to 100. Atchafalpa lost 3 1/2 points.

O'Neill Is Loose Again; D. A. R. Quick With Pen, Proves It Is Real Friend

Eugene O'Neill, America's best known take-it-or-leave-it playwright, has sprung his latest opus on Broadway and inspired David P. Sontner, International News Service critic, to the following comment:

"If there were three persons to-day who could agree on what it was all about I'd like to introduce them to each other and we'd all go through a revolving door together."

O'Neill's newest is named "Mourning Becomes Electra" and requires six hours for production. It is a trilogy, the three related plays being entitled "Home Coming," "The Hunted" and "Haunted."

The production, under auspices of the Theater Guild, breaks the previous long-distance acting record held by O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," which ran one hour

Baldner, Tillie Kiernan, Edna T. Jackson, Sarah Bell Williams, Mrs. S. Arthur Dean, Mrs. Maude T. Stark, DeEtta C. Wilson, Clara Jackson Cherry, May Garrison, Clara H. Hirst, M. K. Carpe, Pearl C. Kyle, Rosa D. Shaffer, Emma Jean Cherry and Mary H. McClellan.

The news columns reports that Josephine Dunn has obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from Clyde E. Greathouse, Oklahoma oil heir, whom she married only last January 10. Miss Dunn, one of the better known young film actresses was listed recently as one of Hollywood's outstanding "baby stars."

Al Boasberg tells about the producer of a Broadway flop who gave an out-of-town friend tickets to the show. The next day he met the friend on the street. "Well, how did you like it?" he asked. "Very well," said the friend, "only I don't think you should have had that brass rail around the audience." "Brass rail," shouted the producer. "That wasn't the audience. That was the orchestra."

This department feels very grateful to members of Catharine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, who were kind enough to sign a petition asking for the return of this column to the paper.

Your correspondent, feeling very much flattered, hopes to be able to continue to operate this department in a way that will win the further approval of these good women. In view of this very gracious compliment, the writer feels humbled. He expresses his thanks to the following: Winnifred H. Armstrong, Martha D.
